GREAT ALARM OCCASIONED IN MARATIME CIRCLES BY WARNING OF CRUISER.

(International News Service.)
New York, Nov. 27.—Ever increasing reports of German war submarines lurking off the New England coast waiting for allied shipping caused intense anxiety in maritine circles here today.

The most tangible of the flood of rumors and reports was a general warning sent out to all allied shipping by the British cruiser Lancaster, patrolling beyond the 3-mile limit, to beware of the underwater menace.

It was reported that two war submarines had succeeded in creeping through the allied cordon and were somewhere off the New England coast. The anxiety was increased by the fact that some of the largest of Trans-Atlantic liners are due in this week, each with heavy passenger lists.

S. W. MCGILL TELLS OF Y. M. C. A. WORK

NASHVILLE WORKER RELATES INTERESTING EXPERIENCES ALONG THE BORDER.

S. W. McGill, general secretary of the Nashville Y. M. C. A., yesterday made two religious addresses in Albany. In the afternoon at 3 o'clock he spoke to a goodly number of men at the association building and at night he occupied the pulpit of the West Side Presbyterian church. What is sometimes termed "Christian militancy" characterized both of Mr. McGill's addresses. He said at the Y. M. C. A. that the call did not always come for men "to go to Nineveh to preach," or "to go to Patmos to suffer," but that all men were called to "Go up to Ali." The speaker made these scriptures to mean, "Go back where you have failed."

"Though it is true, one cannot begin 'again' he can begin 'now.'" Action along the right lines was urged, with that grim absence of foolishness, such as might characterize a military general, with relentlessness of a prosecuting attorney and with the love of a true Christian.

The speaker had recently spent some time with the soldiers now guarding the Mexican border, and aside from his address, he said that little children in Mexico, were on the verge of starvation, and were eating wild beans, rose leaves and refuse from the American army. He said dens of vice were opened along the border to destroy our soldiers. But he also said that constructive forces were also at work. The Y. M. C. A. alone had given the soldiers clean homelike surroundings, had distributed 10,000,000 sheets of letter paper, 5,000,000 envelopes and 10,000 quarts of ink. The association's efforts closed for good a system of saloons and houses of ill fame. In one of the evangelistic meetings, conducted by Mr. McGill on the border, 303 soldiers accepted Christ.

FUTURE COURSE OF MEXICO AND U. S. IS UP TO CARRANZA

WASHINGTON FEARS DE FACTO HEAD WILL REJECT ATLANTIC CITY PROTOCOL.

(International News Service.)
Washington, Nov. 27.—The determination of relations between the United States and Mexico is once more squarely up to Carranza. The first chief's attitude as expressed either in accepting or rejecting the Atlantic City protocol, will point the way to the future course of the United States.

There is grave apprehension here that Carranza will reject the agreement on account of its provision for the pursuit of Mexican raiders back into Mexico if they cross the American frontier, although no similar reciprocal rights are given Mexican commanders.

Creation of New State By Charles Forseen

(International News Service.)
London, Nov. 27.—In connection with the coronation of Charles as king of Hungary, a new Slav state may be proclaimed, says the Times today. It is to be created from parts of Montenegro, Servia, Dalmatia, Croatia, Bosnia and Herzegovina.

(Note:—A dispatch to the International News Service weeks ago stated that the creation of the new Slav nation was under contemplation.)

250 Chicago Gunmen Rounded Up By Cops

(International News Service.)

Officials of the road announced also that if they were allowed to re-enter the service it would be on the basis of new employees.

Ambassador Gerard to Get Inside Facts on European Situation

(International News Service.)
Washington, Nov. 25.—James W. Gerard, American ambassador to Germany, today began conferences through which he was to learn what the United States is "going to do about it," in every important diplomatic issue now pending with the European governments.

He will receive from President Wilson and Secretary Lansing an outline of this government's plan concerning possible peace moves, submarine warfare and retaliation against Great Britain because of the blacklisting of American firms.

Ambassador Gerard's conference will not result in any clearing of the present submarine situation, it was said.

YOUNG GIRL IS SERIOUSLY HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Miss Self, of Neal, 11 miles from Hartselle, was badly injured Sunday morning by an automobile driven by E. E. Bailey, of the Gulf Compress Company, of this city.

At the time of the accident, a bevy of young people were coming from church, and there were one or two horsemen in the number. A horse became frightened at the car, backed suddenly and frightened the young ladies of the party. Miss Self, in escaping from the heels of the horse, is said to have run directly in front of the Bailey motor.

The injured girl was taken to her home where it was found that she had sustained a broken leg and fractured collar bone. She was attended by Dr. White of Hartselle.

VILLA REPORTED TO BE FIGHTING IN STREETS WITH THE CARRANZISTAS.

(International News Service.)
El Paso, Nov. 27.—The result of the battle for Chihuahua City was in doubt early today.

On the fifth day of Villa's assault the city remained completely isolated, communication having been interrupted since Saturday morning.

Villa had captured the pen and was storming Carranza's barricades in the streets when the last dispatches were filed.

Many Juarez families have crossed to the American side of the border, fearing an outbreak and mutiny of the garrison.

Carranza officials are plainly worried over the fate of the state capital.

Secret Service Men Yet Mystified at Mail Pouch Robbery

With one suspect, a negro, having been grilled regarding his movements on last Friday morning when a mail pouch addressed to the New Decatur postoffice was robbed, government officials today took another line of investigation in an effort to clear up the mystery. The negro's story was thought to be true.

So far not a ray of light and not a glimmer of a clue has been found as to the perpetrator of the robbery when several hundred letters were opened after the bag had been stolen either from the mail car as it crossed the river bridge or from the union station platform at Decatur.

After two days unsuccessful search the government men redoubled their efforts this morning to find the robber of the pouch and some developments in the case are expected tomorrow. Thus far the identity of the robber probably remains as much a mystery to the secret service men as it does to the public.

Rainy Thanksgiving

Such is Prediction of the Atlanta Weather Bureau.

A rainy Thanksgiving is predicted by the weather bureau of the United States department of agriculture, located at Atlanta, according to a weekly forecast received this morning by the Daily.

Fiery Speech in Behalf of Lawler's Slayer Made by Attorney B. M. Allen

CITIZENS METHOD OF PROSECUTION

Solicitor Tate for State Ridicules Self Defense Plea and Asks Death Penalty.

(International News Service.)
Huntsville, Nov. 27.—The prosecution of David D. Overton for the killing of Judge Lawler by the entire legal force of the state of Alabama and the sending of military forces to this county were due to the Lawler family's efforts to make of the Madison county killing one like that in Sarejere, when the Austrian heir was killed, according to B. M. Allen, of the Overton defense, in his argument to the jury today.

Allen said Overton had "killed a member of the Madison county nobility in self defense and the Lawler family had mobilized the state's forces in order to hang him for it."

Argument of the case began with the speech of Solicitor Joseph Tate to the jury this morning. He was followed by Attorney Grimmer for the defense, and then by Allen. All the morning session was consumed with the three speeches.

Tate asked that the death penalty be imposed on Overton, declaring his claim of self-defense would not hold.

B. M. Allen spoke of Overton's willingness to come back home for trial before a jury of his neighbors as a point in his favor and spoke of him as "a good man, a humane man, who had never injured a prisoner during the 14 years he was a policeman of Huntsville."

Allen said Overton was a man who had gone to his successful political rival the day after the election and offered his congratulations. Allen spoke of the special grand jury after the election of Lawler to investigate gross frauds and said it was a matter of common knowledge that Lawler had been indicted. "Overton had twelve friends on that jury who believed in his honesty and he had no fear of that body. Lawler had everything at stake that a man could have—an office that has cost him a great deal of money and he had at stake his political life. One thousand dollars is the amount the law allows a candidate for probate judge to spend and if he spends more than that sum he becomes disqualified. That's why Judge Lawler went out to Whitesburg with Overton," said Judge Allen.

NALLS AND BROOKS TAKEN TO GUNTERSVILLE

(International News Service.)
Huntsville, Nov. 27.—Chas. Nalls, former clerk of the circuit court, and Percy Brooks, ferryman, both of whom were indicted as co-defendants with D. D. Overton in the Lawler murder were quietly moved to Gunterville today. They will be left there for the present, but will soon be admitted to nominal bail.

Today is set aside for arguments of attorneys in the trial of David D. Overton for the murder of Judge Lawler and the court room was packed as usual at the opening of court.

Judge Miller cautioned the crowd that no demonstration must be made during the argument. Many were searched for firearms by deputies as they entered the doors of the court room.

Arguments Are Not Limited.

Judge Miller announced that arguments would not be limited, and Solicitor Joseph Tate opened for the state.

Tate said the whole state and south is watching this case. He said that Overton's testimony is contradictory in many important respects. He said his testimony as to hours of arriving in the city following the tragedy and at the home at Nalls were disputed by other evidence.

Solicitor Tate Speaks.

Tate claimed Overton had years of experience in knowing evidence and in this case had made it confusing for his own purpose. Good character could not shield him in a crime of this kind, said Tate. He declared no man who had killed another in self-defense would leave his home and family and remain many nights without shelter. He said Overton was running away to save time to prepare his defense. He claimed the defendant had no idea at first of setting up a plea of self defense until the state had proven when, where and by whom Judge Lawler was killed. He asked that the verdict be such that human life in Madison county will be secure. He said there has never been an occasion when the death penalty was more deserved than in this case. Tate spoke for one and one-half hours.

Chas. Grimmer Is Heard.

Chas. Grimmer followed for the defense. He said the defense had proven its case through the activities of the state in finding Lawler's knife under the bridge, Overton's bloody clothes and proving Overton was badly wounded. The state thought Overton would deny the whole thing. If Overton had not used his pistol on the bridge, Grimmer said, the state would now be trying Lawler instead of Overton.

He claimed the state showed Lawler met Overton and was anxious to make an agreement. He declared that Overton had given him up to Sheriff

Postmaster McMillan Has Several Unidentified Letters Taken From Mail Pouch Rifled By Thieves

As the result of the rifling of a mail pouch Friday, Postmaster Claude McMillan finds himself the personal custodian of a number of letters that he has been unable to deliver on account of mystery concerning the addresses. The envelopes had been removed.

Mr. McMillan, in order to deliver these letters if possible, gave the Daily a list of them today, hoping that the publicity might aid in locating the owners. The list included a receipt for "two quarts of bottled in bond."

The assortment consists of:

- One letter from Nichols, Ky., signed "Edgar McIntyre."
- One letter from Poplar Hill, Ky., signed "Georgia."
- One letter, no date line, signed "Roy."
- One letter, no date line, addressed to "My Darling Mama and Mamma."
- One receipt for premium on Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co. policy for Mrs. Louise P. Phillips.
- Two letters, no marks of identification.
- One receipt for two quarts bottled in bond.

The addressees can obtain these letters by calling at the Albany post office and identifying them.

SUFFRAGISIS LOSE THEIR MOST BEAUTIFUL LEADER.

In the death of Mrs. Inez Milholland Boissevain, which occurred Sunday at her home in California, the suffragists lost their most beautiful leader. Despite her many gifts, her unusual ability and her dashing manner of doing things contrary to the code, she could not escape the distinction which unusual pulchritude thrusts upon every member of her sex so fortunate, or unfortunate, as to possess it. No doubt she would have preferred to be known as a woman of intellect, as a woman of genius, and to have had the public forget that nature had painted her face and moulded her form after the accepted pattern of perfection. Regardless of her views as to sex equality, she was unable to reach that common ground where men and women stand as equals; superiority of looks was thrust upon her.

The life and career of Mrs. Boissevain afforded arguments both for and against suffrage. Her death, due to exposure during the recent presidential campaign in California, when she tried to throw the woman vote of the state to the republican standard bearer, was a contradiction of her statement that men and women can bear the same burdens with the same fortitude. Her fatal illness was brought on by her campaign activities; no man was ever known to go down under the strain of much platform speaking.

Holding the record for long distance shot-putting, which was established in her college days by hurling the 8-pound weight 31 feet 8 1/2 inches, Mrs. Boissevain displayed a masculine prowess that made her subject to the charge of "manliness," which the anti-suffragists bring against the "suffs." Yet, she was wooed and wed within a month, and surely that is proof enough that she was truly feminine. She refused to wear a wedding ring, characterizing the emblem as a badge of slavery, yet accepted the bonds which the holy state of matrimony in itself forges. Was not this genuine feminine inconsistency?

The fallen leader, like many others who have gained unusual fame, was after all a human being of unusual versatility. Fighting was but a small part of what Napoleon could do well; grim old Julius Caesar would have left his impress upon the world had he never drawn a sword. Mrs. Boissevain stands at the head of the latter day class of leaders, those who have been brought to the fore by the gradual recognition of the ability of women to shine in any sphere. She combined the better attributes of the two sexes. The historians and the poets of the next century may devote much of their time to chronicling and singing the praise of such as she.

IMPETUOUS MR. CLARK.

Champ Clark, speaker of the house of representatives, has a reputation for speaking hastily. It was the big speaker who practically ruined all chance of reciprocity with Canada by uttering some foolish annexation talk just before the Canadian parliament was to vote on the American proposal. At numerous and sundry other times Mr. Clark has been guilty of saying things that had better have been left unsaid.

Last week when the popular speaker made a tour of Alabama, he was quoted by the Selma correspondent of the Montgomery Advertiser to the effect that all this talk about a political alignment between the south and the west is "bunk." He declared that the west is naturally republican and intimated that the vote for President Wilson in the west this time was indicative of nothing that might follow politically in the country to the west of the big river.

It seems to us that if a democratic politician even thought this he might keep it to himself. Nothing can throw cold water on the alignment than such expressions from southern democratic leaders.

What assurance can Mr. Clark have that the west is not going to remain democratic permanently if the party keeps abreast of western sentiment? If Mr. Clark has any aspirations to be the democratic nominee for president four years hence he had better keep such ideas to himself.

ATHENS COLLEGE NOTES.

On Wednesday evening, November 22, President and Mrs. Glasgow celebrated the ninth anniversary of their wedding by giving a dinner to the faculty. The big table was beautifully set in the assembly hall, with covers for twenty-five. A large center piece of yellow chrysanthemums and ferns, with the sheen of silver and crystal, and the glow of many candles made it very brilliant. The place cards were without names, but each had a sketch on it that was so characteristic of some one of the party that no one had any difficulty in finding the place of any individual. A most elegant course dinner was served and was enjoyed by each one present. There were several toasts to the "bride and groom" and to the occasion, and the evening was a most happy one for all guests. President and Mrs. Glasgow are very gifted in entertaining.

The address by Hon. Champ Clark, speaker of the house, on Thursday evening was a great pleasure to the large audience who heard him. Everyone appreciated the opportunity of hearing this noted statesman. His reminiscences were very delightful.

Everyone is looking forward with great pleasure to the prospect of hearing President Henry L. Southwick, who is America's leading dramatic reader, when he comes to present "The Cardinal King" in music hall on Tuesday evening, Nov. 28, at 8 o'clock. Admission is fifty cents.

There will be a match game of basketball between teams picked, one from the Academy and one from the college, on athletic field Thanksgiving at 9:30. Great enthusiasm is shown by the boosters of each side and a good game is expected, for the teams are playing well. The public is most cordially invited. There will be an admission fee of 25 cents, and the proceeds will go to the Athletic association treasury.

Miss Alice Brown, the field secretary of the Y. W. C. A. of the colleges of this section, is a guest at the college for a few days, and the young ladies are gaining much inspiration from her visit. This week has been observed by the association as the "Week of Fellowship," this being the way the organization designates their week of prayer.

The quarterly examinations were held last week and every one is glad they are over, and in most cases successfully over.

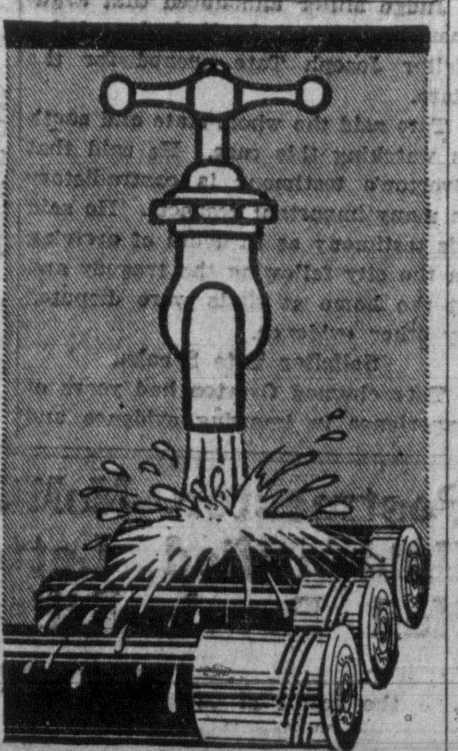

Mrs. Glasgow entertained informally in honor of Miss Brown and Mrs. Gambrel Saturday afternoon. The faculty enjoyed meeting these ladies. Mrs. Gambrel is here to enter a daughter in college.

Miss McCandless, Miss Weaver and Miss Doyle, of the faculty, went to Nashville to hear Madame Zeisler, the great pianist.

President Glasgow was in Nashville one day this week.

Home of Jefferson Davis is Now Used as Home For Aged Veterans

Gulfport, Miss., Nov. 25.—Beauvoir, once the home of Jefferson Davis, now a retreat maintained for aged Confederate veterans of Mississippi, will be one of the show places for tourists who visit the Mississippi Centennial Exposition to be held here next year. Beauvoir is maintained by the state, and the Mississippi Division, Sons of Confederate Veterans. No inmate bears any of the expense; instead two dollars per month is given each old veteran and this suffices for his incidental expenses. Tobacco, clothing, medical attention and three meals a day are furnished free.

Mississippi's endeavor to care for her veterans is typical of the movement throughout the South. Without the aid of a federal pension, the South—forgetting the bitterness and travail of the civil war, but cherishing the men who fought under Lee—is caring for her own. The story at Beauvoir is peculiarly rich in pathos and sentiment, for it was here that Davis wrote "The Rise and Fall of the Confederacy," and here that the deposed president of the Confederate states came when he left prison.

Jones &amp; Abshire Successors to Jervis Lumber Co.

Ready for Business Lumber, Building Material, and General Contracting.

Office Cor. Market & Ferry Sts

H. E. Blakeslee, former commissioner of agriculture of this state, and now director general of the Mississippi Centennial Exposition, was the first Mississippian to contribute to the fund being raised to build new dormitories.

The exposition is held next year. Veterans and widow at Beauvoir participate in "Confederate Day." The South will local war the fighters who feel want petitioned age and the veteran of the dim have not been compelled to a soldier's home.

One Davis' Home. When one enters the grounds at Beauvoir he inevitably pictures the South before the war. The house in which Jefferson Davis lived is colonial in design and circled by wide porches topped by square, white pillars. A spacious hall runs down the center of the home. In this one sees a small, marble-top table, with crooked mahogany legs.

"Jefferson Davis sat here and wrote his book," an attendant informs you. "He came here for reflection and repose after the war."

There's an old square piano in the corner of the reception room. It belonged to Winnie Davis. "The Daughter of the Confederacy." For forty years it has gone untuned, but its tone is soft and sweet. In this room also one may see the silver communion service used by the Confederate chieftain. An oil painting of Jefferson Davis hangs over the mantelpiece and about the place are photographs of Mississippi statesmen of later days.

In a back room there is an old leather trunk, its cover made dingy by hard usage and time.

"He took this trunk with him to Mexico and Europe," explains the attendant as he moves on to the back porch with its high green blinds and lattice work. To the rear are the little houses where servants once lived, and a big rusty bell, rung by a clothes line that runs over a pulley, clangs in the back yard and summons the veterans to their meals.

The bedroom that Jefferson Davis occupied contains the old-fashioned wooden bed, with canopy top, upon which Davis lay and dreamed of battles won and lost. Paintings and photographs of Confederate soldiers in their gray uniforms are on the walls, and in a corner one may see a divan of antique design.

Records Stored Here.

Records of the Confederate states, in book form, and histories of the civil war show their dusty covers through the glass doors of the bookcases. Now and then a veteran whose eyesight still is good enters the reading room and takes down a volume that recounts the campaigns of Lee, or Stonewall Jackson, or Longstreet, or tells of Pickett's famous charge at Gettysburg.

As the visitor walks through the grounds he finds little groups of old men sitting on the benches under the oak trees. They live in the past—most of them—and they talk of Appomattox, Antietam, Bull Run, Richmond, Atlanta, the Wilderness, Gettysburg, and the valley of Virginia.

Arguments flare up and wane about mistakes in strategy, charge and counter charge, hand-to-hand fighting and camp scenes. The trench fighting of the wars of today does not appeal to the imagination of these veterans of the struggles of the sixties.

Beauvoir is within a stone's throw of the Gulf of Mexico and midway between Gulfport and Biloxi. It covers 630 acres and is one of the most picturesque spots along the beautiful gulf coast where thousands of northern visitors come in winter time.

As feeble Confederate veterans nowadays stroll in and out of the old Davis mansion they regard Beauvoir as a shrine as well as a home, and, as one of them expressed it:

"President Davis would be glad to find us here if he could come back—and I reckon it's as good as a penniless old veteran can ask for to live and die at Jeff Davis' home."

Now that Wilson is elected and Muscle Shoals comes next, it is time to buy land. I have 10, 30, 40, 80, 160 and 360 acre tracts lying between the Twin Cities and Muscle Shoals, for sale.

High in especial favor, however, stands that famous ballad, "The Last Rose of Summer," which Flotow interpolated in the scene preceding Lionel's love avowal to Martha and which is a triumph for Miss Carmen, who sings the title role, never failing to bring her numerous encores.

The captivating "Spinning Wheel Quartet," as sung by Sheehan, Carmen, DeSelle and Geis is a number which for merriment and melodiousness has few equals, the beautiful

OVERTON CASE WILL GO TO JURY

Phillips and the sheriff said he would handle the case as he saw fit because of the great excitement in the community.

Allen criticizes the State.

Judge B. M. Allen followed Mr. Grimmett for the defense and said the friends of Judge Lawler had done what they could to make the consequences following his death similar to those following the killing of the Austrian heir to the throne. He said when any set of men is so powerful as to cause the whole state of Alabama to mobilize its legal forces against a man who had defended himself against the deadly assault of a leader of that faction, it is time for all other people to leave.

At 3 o'clock the argument had not been conducted. The case is expected to go to the jury by 6 o'clock.

STATE SCORES HEAVILY AT SATURDAY AFTERNOON SESSION

Saturday afternoon Mrs. Robert Phillips, the widow of the late sheriff, took the stand when the state started its case in rebuttal, and swore that her husband came home early on Wednesday night, June 14, and remained at home with her throughout the night, received no telephone calls, and never left the house until about 9 o'clock the next morning with his son-in-law.

Mrs. Tom Lawler, the daughter of the late Sheriff Phillips, testified to seeing her father come home early Wednesday night and remained at home until quite late the next morning. There was no telephone call, stated Mrs. Lawler.

Tom Lawler, a second cousin of the deceased official and son-in-law of the late sheriff, testified he slept within four feet of the telephone while Sheriff Phillips slept in the upper part of the house, and that there was no telephone calls, nor did Mr. Phillips leave the house at any time during the fatal night.

Mysterious Letter.

It became known Saturday that Mrs. William T. Lawler was in receipt of an anonymous letter, to the effect that Dave Overton and two other men had killed the late probate judge on Whitesburg bridge on the night of June 14.

Bill King, a negro, and the only negro witness in the case, was called. The negro King stated that he met Overton about 9 o'clock Wednesday night, and that Overton gave him a half dollar.

On cross-examination by Prosecutor Thompson the negro stated he did not know what day, what week, what month or even what year Overton had given him that half dollar.

Alex Dyas, a deputy sheriff, testified regarding a large hand print on the Whitesburg bridge, and also that he had noticed no unusual noises about the court house yard on the night of Wednesday, June 14.

Square Was Deserted.

On cross-examination Dyas stated that he noted as unusual that there was no one about the public square the night of the killing.

Miss Elizabeth Cotton, a young woman who lives at the home of Percy Brooks, testified that Percy Brooks came home ill the night of Wednesday, June 14, and remained in bed until the next morning. Her testimony was not changed by cross-examination.

Following the testimony of Miss Cotton, the counsel for the defense announced:

"We rest."

There was a recess of 15 minutes for the prosecution to confer with its witnesses in rebuttal.

After Mrs. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lawler had testified regarding the fact that the late sheriff was

Steamer May Have Struck Submarine

(International News Service.)

New York, Nov. 27.—The White Star liner Lapland, which arrived today from Liverpool, reported hitting a submerged object off Nantuxet, that may have been either a submerged derelict or a submarine. The collision took place early yesterday. At that time the Lapland was speeding through the darkness with all her lights out to avoid U-boats.

SPEAKE & MOEBES

at home throughout the night of Wednesday, June 14, the state placed on the stand a young merchant named Sam Thompson, who testified that on the fatal night he saw David Overton and George E. Blanton talking in the vestibule of his store at about 9:30 o'clock. His testimony was not broken down on cross examination by Judge Allen.

J. M. McDonald, a grocer, testified that on Wednesday, June 14, at about 10:30 o'clock at night, he saw Overton driving an open buggy to the north of the court house and that both greeted each other. Mr. McDonald further stated that he was with a companion named Ben Hawk, who also spoke to Overton. On cross examination the testimony of McDonald was unchanged.

Dr. John Burnham, a combination dentist and locksmith, testified to breaking into the private office of the circuit court clerk on the Saturday following the killing at the instructions of Solicitor Tate. Dr. Burnham testified that he did not see any bloody marks about the place.

Cross-examination failed to shake him.

George E. Blanton, a police officer, was the first witness placed by Judge Allen in rebuttal. He stated that he was on duty at 9 o'clock Wednesday night, June 14, and that he never saw Overton that night. On cross-examination, Blanton admitted that about 5 o'clock the next morning he saw Percy Brooks drive through the city with two workmen as passengers.

Walter Sanders, a deputy sheriff, testified he was with Blanton until late Wednesday night, June 14, and that he did not see Overton. On cross-examination he stated that he saw Percy Brooks drive by, coming from Whitesburg at about 9:30 o'clock that Wednesday night.

This statement caused considerable excitement in the court room, coming as it did after the positive testimony that Percy Brooks had been home in bed from early Wednesday night to early Thursday morning.

Fulham Hall, a motorcycle policeman, was the next to testify. His testimony consisted of the fact that he saw Overton's closed buggy in front of the Elks' building at about 9 o'clock on Wednesday night, June 14.

David D. Overton then was recalled to the stand, where he denied that he had met either McDonald or Blanton, and had not been in the vestibule of the Thompson store on Wednesday night. Overton further stated that he knew nothing of the movements of the automobile of Percy Brooks.

Judge Allen then announced he had closed his case.
